

Electromagnetic Ecology

The stars stretch over me like a blanket
Cool and sure
Like misty air
The crickets play music
And the college kids party
The town feels alive
It's gorgeous by this river:
Outlines of trees against the glimmering water
Loom in stark, beautiful contrast with the background
I know their leaves are yellow even though it's dark
Such a bright October evening
In shades of grey and black and starlight
Summer turned to fall turned to winter
Big dipper ~~up on end~~
All tipped out

The water laps against the shore
And the trees sway with the wind
A beaver paddles and splashes
Leaves drop to the ground and make sweet, soft sounds
That seem loud in the dusky, dark quiet

Electromagnetic
Ecology
Connecting
Every single thing
Alive
Like the rich leaves and pine needles
Against the earth's beating heart

An ache in my belly and tingle in my toes!

-K. ILSEMAN October 18/19, 2014

All the boys & girls I love
Have beautiful souls